Candidates File For Election To City Commission

Four Candidates Seek Three Positions On Commission In Sept. Election

As forerunner of the general election here, scheduled September 11, when registered voters will elect three city commissioners and vote in a referendum on a special act, four local men filed for candidacy this week, according to City Clerk Frank Anderson.

Up to press time Thursday noon Julius Harris from North St. Louis, W. K. Whitlow, W. K. Lloyd, sanitary department and Junius Harris, street department. Up to the present time, Harris is the only commissioner who has announced his candidacy for reelection. Candidates may file until 4:30 p.m. August 11, Anderson said.

Registration for voters will be open in the city hall until 11:30 a.m. September 1. Registration books show that approximately 1,000 are qualified that could vote.

The referendum will be held on a special act which grants the city commission authority over powers which it may exercise through ordinance. The act was just passed at the last session of the state legislature in Tallahassee.

Powers granted to the city through the act include the right to operate or lease public markets; to regulate and control by ordinance loading and unloading of vehicles; to plant and maintain trees; to regulate and control by ordinance the operation of a bus transportation system by owning or leasing to other persons.

The act specifies that these enumerated powers are to be exercised in addition to other powers already possessed by the city.

EPISCOPAL CHURCHES IN GLADES GET NEW VICAR

Rev. John Petrie will serve as vicar of the Glades Episcopal churches. He comes to the Lake Okechobee area from Christ Church, Harlan, Ky.

He will serve the church of Holy Nativity in Pahokee and St. Martin's in Clewiston.

Rev. Petrie has served as supply priest several times in south Florida churches. During July he supplied at the Holy Trinity, West Palm Beach, for the last year through donations but that this year she had saved sufficient funds through candy and cake sales to finance the purchase.

For two summers he was at the Lake Worth Congregational Church and two summers in charge of the People's Church, Hejsted.

He acted as public panel chairman for the War Labor Board at Houston, Texas, during the war while serving the church at that point. He thus was a frequent arbitrator of disputes between labor and management during those years.

The Petries reside at the vicarage in Pahokee. He conducted Holy Communion and the morning service for the first time Sunday.

ALLEN CHARGES

McC. W. McDonald, park and playground supervisor, requested that the city purchase a file cabinet for the library. The commission agreed to the purchase.

She announced that a picnic, marking the end of the summer recreation program in the park, will be held Saturday night. She stated that the picnic was paid for last year through donations but that this year she had saved sufficient funds through candy and cake sales to finance the picnic without assistance.

Fire Chief Lawrence Will reported that he hopes to send several firemen to the Fire College in Ocala for courses. The commission instructed him to submit an estimate of the necessary expenses.

The commission passed an ordinance on second and final reading providing for the disposition of unclaimed money held by public employees or officers.

The three ordinances regarding regulations on dogs were passed. The ordinances required that all dogs be vaccinated against rabies; that any person letting a vicious animal run at large shall be fined and that dog license fees be raised to $1.50 on male and spayed dogs and $3 for female dogs.

Commissioners adopted a resolution of Riddle Aviation Co. seeking to establish an air freight transportation line to and from Belle Glade.

The commission instructed the chief of police to prohibit the use of the jail to Constable Ray Whitlock for county prisoners. The action was taken after repeated unsuccessful attempts by the city to collect a past due bill for county prisoners' room and board.

SHOOTIN' BLANKS
After twenty some odd years research on this problem, the answer suddenly came to me this week. Now that my objective is in sight, I shall lose no time at all in arriving to benefit this group with my best possible advice.

I determined my objective when the city clerk reported that men were filing to run for city commission in the September general election.

At this point I had an earnest chat with myself, as I often do, and did some real figuring. I said to myself, "these poor fellows are politicians or soon will be. They say that politicians run the world and that's a pretty tough assignment."

Then again this week I witnessed the filing of some political machinery, and again I held conference with myself. At this point I reasoned that their plight was similar to the fellow who ventured Niagara Falls in a rubber intertube rig. If the candidate should win what would he gain. If he falls jumping dare devil should have succeeded, Niagara wouldn't have given a hoot. After involving myself in all these mental gymnastics, I resolved to drop to them a pearl of advice on their candidacy that I might help the "most needy."

Even an old gubernatorial candidate who ran on the platform "A man has his own friends, Sears and Roebuck, Jesus Christ and Sidney J. Catts" could have used these instructions to good advantage.

The recipe is this: read carefully all pages in the book, "How to Lose Friends and Alienate People." Careful study of this publication will cause the candidate to lose the election and thus the agony of public office.

JOANNE TEDDER TO ATTEND RED CROSS CAMP
Joanne Tedder has been selected to represent Belle Glade High School at the Junior Red Cross leadership training camp at Camp Green Cove, Tuxedo, N. C. from August 22 to September 1.

The 200 juniors will be trained in program planning, first aid, home nursing, swimming and arts and crafts. Delegates will be leaders in their high schools and at chapter headquarters on return.

The program was made possible through the Junior Red Cross service funds by the members.

OKELANTA SUGAR CO-OP UNDERGOING REPAIRS
The Okelanta Sugar Co-op, operated by the Bank of Commerce at Columbia, S. C., is undergoing repairs and will have a capacity of 90,000 pounds of sugar next season.

Engineers are busy this summer trying to get a well of water in sufficient volume to supply the plant and camp.

The plant is using surface water from the canal which is treated to secure safe water for consumption.

An early maturity cane is grown on the land adjacent to the plant for early grinding. Contractors with growers on warmer land nearer the lake will be leaders in their high schools and at chapter headquarters on return.

The mill refinery operated at a profit this year for the first time since the enterprise was established some five years ago.

Florida never ceases to amaze me. Just about the time I get to thinking I really know something about what is going on in the state I run into some big new development that I never even heard of.

You know things are just naturally moving so fast in Florida that a fellow has to be a sort of a cross between a kangaroo and a jumping jack to keep up with what's going on.

Last week I drove over to Sebring to attend a press meeting and found that the good folks of Highlands County had arranged a personally conducted tour of the area for our special benefit.

After visiting beautiful Highlands Hammock State Park and enjoying a wonderful Florida products luncheon, we drove through miles of rolling lakes and hills planted to citrus groves as far as the eye could see. Then we stopped at Hendricks Field to visit the gigantic plant of the American Industrial Sales Corporation. Here, without any whoopee or fanfare, two energetic young men have built up a remarkable business that is the largest of its kind in the world and have accomplished this in less than five years.

The organization deals in airplane replacement parts and carries a stock of around a half million parts which are shipped on order to just about every country in the world.

We were taken through warehouse after warehouse loaded to the ceiling with every conceivable type of equipment used by modern planes from tiny screws and bolts to frames, propellers, generators, motors and the like.

Another growing industry located in the same field is the Webster Corporation, manufacturers of irrigation equipment. Highlands County also lays claim to the largest citrus grove and peach orchard development under one ownership, property of Lykes Brothers of Tampa.

You might think that the discovery of such amazing industry and agricultural enterprises located in just one of Florida's 67 counties would be enough to hold a fellow for a while, but these Highlands folks had more to show us.

After driving through the growing communities of DeSoto City and Lake Placid we journeyed South to the old Roebeling Estate, a 1050-acre property developed by Donald Roebeling and which he gave to the Archbold Foundation for use as a Biological Station.

Here our host was Richard Archbold, world famed scientist and explorer, who has headed many expeditions to all parts of the world in search of further knowledge of plant and animal life that might be turned to the welfare and advantage of all mankind.

Research is carried on here continually by top-flight scientists who conduct all manner of experiments in their study of plant, insect and animal life. Well equipped laboratories provide ideal working conditions.

One experiment in advanced hydroponics is being carried on in a glass enclosed hothouse where vegetables are being grown without the aid of soil. In this same glassed-in laboratory we were introduced to an assortment of innocent looking plants that were told came from far away places and are the source of the poison used by natives to tip their arrows.

Here, study and research may find that the sap of these poisonous plants can be effectively used to aid instead of harm us in the eternal fight against suffering and disease.

In another laboratory we found a large wire screen cage where every known type of mosquito is bred and carefully studied in an effort to find a better method of controlling these insect pests.

The Archbold Foundation is well financed and affiliated with the American Museum of Natural History. Florida is fortunate in having such a splendid research organization operating in this area.

Our tour was completed with a visit to Mandis Dairy where we enjoyed a wonderful barbecue. The local folks did a fine job of selling their country and we were all grateful for the opportunity given us to learn so much in so short a time of these remarkable developments of which not only Highlands but all Florida may well be proud.

VETERANS' INFORMATION AND SERVICE

It is alarming to me to notice correspondence, at odd times between veterans or Veterans' Service Officers and the VA about cases where the insured under National Service Life Insurance, attempted to renew his term policy for an additional period of five years, but has inadvertently failed to comply with the requirements, thereby losing his NSLI. I feel it is time to again bring to the attention of all veterans holding NSLI the necessity of insured paying all premiums for the remainder of the present term period plus payment at the new rate for the first month of the new term and submitting application for renewal, on or before expiration date of the old term policy.

It appears to me that the VA Form Letter 9-353, notifying the insured the requirements for renewal, is clear enough, but apparently there have been a few veterans who have not clearly understood it, and who have failed to ask the assistance of the local Veterans' Service Officer.

Two cases have recently come to our attention where, prior to expiration of the current term, the insured sent to the VA application for renewal with remittance covering the premium for the first month on the new term but failed to remit the premium for the last month on the old term. The VA could not accept the renewal, and as the Insurance Act of 1951 provides that new NSLI or USGLI may be issued, these insureds are barred from further insurance coverage.

For example, if a serviceman was issued a $10,000 term policy with an effective date of September 1, 1945, the eight year term would expire midnight August 31, 1951, and in order to maintain the insurance, he would have to pay the August premium plus the September premium at his attained age and file application for renewal on or before August 31, 1951. Remember, the new law would prevent him from applying for new insurance after that date. Also, that a lapsed term policy must be reinstated prior to renewal.

For every veteran who misunderstands or inadvertently omits complying with all requirements, there are thousands of clearly understand and handle their reinstatements and renewals properly.

Considering the fact that there are a few who do not understand, it is hoped that they will get the assistance of the local Veterans' Service Officer, or write the State Service Office, P. O. Box 1437, St. Petersburg, Florida.

MEHRHOF POINTS TO GREAT PROGRESS OF POULTRY IN FLORIDA

Florida poultry farmers have made remarkable progress during the past few years and, it is good to note, they are continuing their efforts to improve their flocks and products.

In bringing out some facts about poultry progress recently, Norman R. Mehrhof, head of the University of Florida poultry husbandry department, also emphasized that numerous problems remain to be solved in this field and that diligent attention must be given to them by farmers as well as research workers and specialists.

Today, Florida is producing the finest chicks in its history, with 94 hatcheries with a total egg capacity of 4,000,000 co-operating with and operating under the National Poultry Improvement Plan. To be listed under that plan, a hatcheryman must produce high quality, healthy chicks. More than 1,000,000 chicks are produced by these hatcheries annually. Florida has come a long way in this respect during the past few years.

More than 40,000 Florida farms have chickens, and the average annual egg production of the over 2,500,000 birds on those farms has risen from 100 a decade ago to about 135 today, and commercial producers are now getting 180 eggs per bird annually. Thus, farm flocks as well as commercial flocks have improved a great deal during the past 10 years.

Florida's broiler industry has grown by leaps and bounds, and today the state produces well over 10,000,000 broilers, and it has one broiler plant with a capacity of 85,000, and Florida is producing more turkeys than ever before.

So Florida poultry farmers are now supplying millions of high quality eggs and broilers for the people of this state and visitors. (But large quantities are being imported from other states.)

The progress, Mr. Mehrhof said, has been the result of better, stronger chicks from high production lines, improved feed and feeding practices, better disease control, all-round better management than ever before, and the efforts of research workers and specialists, and the work of poultry organizations in the state.

"Excellent progress has been made," Mr. Mehrhof declared, "but there are many problems pertaining to production, disease control, feeding and marketing that must be solved, and it will require the full efforts and cooperation of all concerned to solve them."
